Weekly Round Up

One more week of home learning to go for many of you and then the date we've all been waiting for when the school fully reopens and we can get back to something like normal.

Another thank you to all the children and parents who have been putting in such a sterling effort at home – we have had some fantastic work through. The children in school have been superstars too, something that was noticed by our chief executive Antony when he visited the school on Friday.

It looks like it's going to be a nice weekend, we hope you have a good one and we look forward to seeing you all again on Monday.

Coming up...

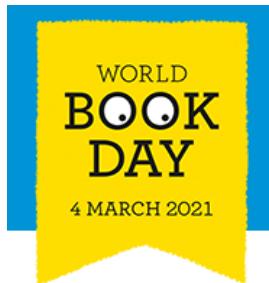

We have an exciting week in shared reading next week with all work centred around local author Katherine Wheatley and her books. She will be virtually visiting the school and there will be lots of competitions and prizes!

In English we will be working on our play script for 'Meerkat Mail', whilst in maths it will be more work on fractions and decimals.

Thursday is of course World Book Day when all of the children (at home or in school) can dress up as their favourite book character. We can't wait to see the costumes!

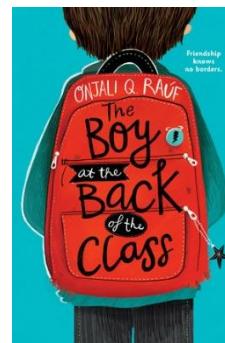

Website of the Week:

No question about our website of the week, it has to be the World Book Day one. Follow the link for all sorts of exciting features and activities.

Hooked on books:

This is an exciting time for the children trying to help Ahmet. They decide to put their plan into action and they write a letter to the Queen asking her to keep the gates open for the refugees and to help find Ahmet's parents.

With time running out, they haven't heard back from Her Majesty so our narrator and Tom decide to bunk off school and go into London to try and meet her themselves. They pool their pocket money and set off by bus and tube train into the centre of London. A friendly taxi driver takes them to Buckingham Palace but how are they going to get past all the police?

Non Negotiables:

Join your class on Teams for registration if you are not at school.

Remember to upload/hand in work on Purple Mash or send to portfolios on dojo.

'Everybody, every day' – Reading with your child every day.

Practise times tables including the division facts. Use Times Tables Rock Stars or any other method to practice. Your practice is paying off! Keep in contact with us using Class Dojo. Have a good weekend. Chris Smith
